

HOP ON BOARD THE GREEN SPACE SHIP!

MARCH 18 - 23: 8:00 am - 5:00pm + evening events

Nephrolepis Exaltata, Dracaena, and Spathiphyllum (Curators at Large) of the Green Space Ship have successfully navigated their way through the galaxy to Modern Art's Museum of the Living Worker. They are now hard at work preparing a week's full of events with many special guests from all over to help you humans tap into the subtle healing vibrations of plant life. Fly yourself on over to Modern Art all week to dance, draw, write, relax, drink chai, learn, converse, adapt, listen, doodle, and canoodle with plants (and just chill the *$%^! out.)

SCHEDULE

Daily Monday through Friday

8:00 - 9:00 AM

Dance with Plants (with J. Sugar Mama)

9:00 AM- 5:00 PM

Chai (and Chill) with Plants

Pop in anytime during the day to sit, listen, sip and commune with plants and other living beings.

Plant Yourself

Take off your shoes or gloves or hats or all of the above and plant yourself (literally) in our homemade planting station

Lunchtime Events

Monday/Wednesday 12 noon - 1:00 PM

Draw with Plants

Spend your lunch drawing, doodling, and canoodling with our leafy friends. Prompts, paper, pens, pencils provided.

Tuesday 12 noon - 1:00 PM

Learn with Plants

Join the wonderful Fritz Schroeder from the Lancaster Conservancy, (and us plants) to learn about habitat, natural lands and urban greening.

Saturday: 1:00 - 2:00 PM

Write with Plants

Write poems and get your hands dirty. During this hour-long generative writing workshop, Erin Dorney of FEAR NO LIT will guide you through creative writing exercises designed to bring you closer to the green leafy things.

Friday 12 noon - 1:00 PM

Adapt with Plants (Welcome to the Anthropocene!)

Nicole Heller, Curator of the Anthropocene for Carnegie Museum of Natural History in Pittsburgh, will be on board the ship to talk about our current geological era, and how we can not totally freak out about what humans are doing to the planet. (Nicole will be here all day to discuss how to curate humanity and other interesting topics- we are so excited she will be here.)

Evening Events

Monday 7:00 - 9:30 pm

Open Studio with Plants

Bring your latest project, artwork, or percolating idea, and get creative with a group of plants (and people). We'll have tables, music, conversation, weird stuff, and chairs.

Tuesday 7:00 - 8:00

Write with Plants

Write poems and get your hands dirty. During this hour-long generative writing workshop, Erin Dorney of FEAR NO LIT will guide you through creative writing exercises designed to bring you closer to the green leafy things.

Wednesday: 7:00 - 8:30 Think with Plants

People often ask me, do plants believe in God? Do plants pray? Do plants go to heaven when they die? "Of course not!" I say. "They're from outer space!" But the guidance that plants provide is profound, nonetheless. They impart lessons that are neither religious, nor secular, nor spiritual. Join professor of Religious Studies, John Modern, and his magical Dream Machine for an immersive evening of sound ideas about how plants think about us and how we might better think about them.

Thursday: 6-8:00pm Communicate with Plants

Humans have an innate ability to communicate with Plants, though we have mostly forgotten how to do this. This evening we will begin to remember how to communicate with the Plants as we once did intuitively. We are so lucky to welcome human Jen Frey of Brigid's Way, to lead us on this endeavor!
